JUDGES SITTING IN
MME. CAILLAUX CASE
WILL FIGHT A DUEL*Following Heated Argument, Judge Albanel Challenges Judge Daugury.*PRISONER FAINTS IN COURT*Case is Adjourned When Mme. Caillaux Collapses and Falls to the Floor During the Reading of One of the Much Discussed Letters.

By Associated Press.
PARIS, July 25.—Mme. Caillaux, soon after she was brought into court today for the sixth day's hearing of the charges of murdering Gaston Calmette, collapsed when the reading began of the letter handed by Mme. Caillaux to the president of the court. She was carried immediately from the court room and fainted.

As soon as the court opened, Mme. Caillaux began reading some of the letters. She pointed out when she took up the second one, "In this you will find nothing but love and nothing but love as common sense has reported." In the letter M. Caillaux writes to the president of the court, "I am not a murderer. I am a man who loves his country and his family."

While the reading was going on, Mme. Caillaux was crying bitterly. Her sobs could be heard all over the courtroom. Then with a sudden fall she prostrated to the floor. Two Republican guards carried her away. The four judges at once rose from their seats and Judge Albanel announced the suspension of the hearing.

A challenge to a duel was sent today by Judge Albanel, presiding judge of the court trying Mme. Caillaux for the murder of Gaston Calmette, to Judge Daugury, one of the three other judges sitting with him. This quarrel between them arose out of an incident which occurred at the Palace of Justice late last night but the nature of it could not be ascertained.

The second appointed by Judge Albanel are Captain Dubouché, former military governor of Paris and Emil Lohr. When the discussion concerning the reading of Mme. Caillaux's letters seemed to be going unfavorably for the defense yesterday, Judge Albanel announced a recess. The papers affirm today that Judge Daugury then said in low tones: "You desist, you desist."

The two judges after taking into a private room, engaged in a heated discussion. It was said eventually Judge Daugury admitted he had said more than he meant to say and apologized. Judge Albanel, however, refused to accept the apology and the incident was regarded as closed. This morning, however, a report of it was made public on the front page of the Figaro. Judge Albanel in reply said to send his second to his colleague.

Mme. Caillaux later recovered and said she felt strong enough to go on with the hearing. M. Caillaux then requested her into the prisoner's cell and a chair was brought for her to sit on instead of the prisoner's bench. She was held and hanged and her features were drawn.

The letters were written in the secret and person singular, indicating the closest friendship. The first of them said: "My dear little girl, an affectionate letter from me to you. I am being towards you."

The second letter of 16 pages in length was written on October 14, 1909 and finished on the following day. It was written on official notepaper of the prefecture of the department of the Seine and said: "My beloved little girl, at last I have a minute to write to you." Then followed a long account of a little story at Lormans and of a visit by M. Caillaux to Paris and it then resumed: "Then must be very reasonable and stay at Dhar for the present. I fear only one thing: black mud. Perhaps some one will make a scandal. Sometimes I am very disconcerted. I have but one consolation—this." The letter concluded with "a thousand million kisses over all your adorable little body."

WANTS FORCIBLE FEEDINGHeckey Edelson Asks Either That or Freedom.

By Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 25.—Heckey Edelson, militant leader of the W. W. who almost went on a hunger strike at the workhouse this week, wants forcible feeding or freedom. Workhouse physicians were very keen that she had taken a strike and they examined her and found her healthy and hopeful still that they would force food down her throat.

"If you won't forcibly feed me," she demanded, "let me out so I can get a square meal. I don't want to be put in a cell where I am told that I am a criminal. I am not. You are giving me a black eye to Berkman, Tucker and other great men."

Auto Wreck Kills Two.

HAZLETON, Pa., July 25.—Two well known young men of Hazleton were killed in an auto accident near Hazleton early today. It is said the auto was racing when one of them hit a tree.

PITTSBURG STREET SEWER REPAIRS BIG IMPROVEMENT*Eight Inch Pipe Had Been Receiving Contents of a 10 and a 12 Inch Sewer.

Much needed sewer improvements are being made on South Pittsburgh street, under the supervision of D. T. Hilleman, city street and sewer inspector. The old school house sewer on Pittsburgh street is being removed and a new line is being placed.

When the new high school was built it was connected with the Fairview avenue sewer. After this the old 8-inch line on Pittsburgh street was not used. Before the present time the 8-inch line going from Fairview avenue to Church place and then to the river was carrying the sewage from a 10 and a 12 inch line on Fairview avenue. This caused such a high pressure at the manhole at Fairview avenue and Pittsburgh street that the force pushed the lid of the manhole from its resting place. After the repairs which are now being made are completed the sewage from Fairview avenue will be permitted to flow south or north on Pittsburgh street. The line is being extended 40 feet.

The work was required to dig 12 feet through rock to reach the old school house sewer which was badly clogged. A number of sticks of dynamite were used to loosen the thick layer of rock. Mr. Hilleman expects to have the line laid today if he is able to secure the necessary pipe.

SERBIA ASKS DELAYWants More Time to Answer Austrian Note.

By Associated Press.
BELGRADE, July 25.—Serbia, according to sources usually in close touch with the foreign office in Belgrade, has requested Austria for an extension of time in which to reply to the note asking for a delay until the Serbian parliament which has been summoned shall have been consulted. It is also stated in authoritative circles that Serbia is ready to grant the Austrian demands as far as possible without damage to her national prestige.

Won't Grant Delay.

LONDON, July 25.—A special dispatch from Vienna says the Russian charge who requested the Austro-Hungarian foreign office for a prolongation of the time limit for the reply to the Austrian note was informed that it could not be granted.

Think War Imminent.

ROME, July 25.—La Vittoria, a Nationalist newspaper, considers war probable, but sees no reason why Italy should engage in it. It adds: "Austria is our ally, but Russia and Serbia are our friends. We have plenty to occupy our attention in the future."

POSTMASTERS NAMEDDemocrat, Decide Which of Faithful Are to Be Rewarded.

After long and careful consideration of which of the faithful to be awarded the postmaster's position, Congressman Wooda N. Carr finally submitted the name of Walter A. Ashton. His name was included in the batch of nominations made by President Wilson yesterday. Ashton was opposed by a long list of applicants, among whom were Edward H. Hamilton, Charles Wilson, Mrs. Helen Miller, George Louchard, Lloyd Shambarger, Roy Nixon, John McLaughlin. The name of Louis Dillner for postmaster at Fairview was also sent to the Senate by the President yesterday. Here too the contest was a bitter one.

AUTOS COLLIDEHarry Dunn's Car and Ford Strike At Street Corner.

As a result of a collision last evening at a street corner in Fairview, Harry Dunn's Interstate and a Ford automobile were both slightly damaged. Dunn was going south and intended to turn at Fairview avenue. The Ford was unable to turn Pittsburgh street because of closing of the street while sewer repairs are being made. It ran across Pittsburgh street and into the path of Mr. Dunn's car. The fenders of both cars were badly bent. None of the occupants of either car were injured, although they were all badly frightened.

TRINITY, July 25.—John Sutton, the "baby" of the New Jersey state prison, is to be given his freedom today on parole granted by the court of pardons. Sutton, who is 16, was released at the prison last October to serve from 1 to 12 years for attacking a girl 6 years old.

FRIGHT FOLLOWING
DOG BITE IS CAUSE
OF BELL'S DEATH*Fear of Rabies and Weak Heart Proves Fatal to West Side Man.*WILL ASK QUARANTINE NOW*Council to Take Action Monday Night to Have the Live Stock Sanitary Board Take Charge of Situation; Woman Jailed For Keeping Dog.

As a result of the many cases of rabies that have been reported in this vicinity, one of which resulted directly in the death of Frank Bell, from fright superinduced by a dog bite, which have caused general alarm, council will take action on Monday night asking the State Livestock Sanitary board to establish a general quarantine on all dogs.

The action will be taken as a result of a conference between Dr. F. N. Shierick, representative of the Sanitary board here, and members of council.

Heart trouble, superinduced from worry and fright from a dog bite, reported in the death of Giuseppe Caporaghi, better known as Frank Bell, yesterday afternoon. He was at the home of his son-in-law, Gaetano Corrado on Ninth street, Greenwood. Mr. Bell was bitten on the arm five weeks ago by a pet dog which had been in the family for years. The dog showed signs of rabies and Mr. Bell was holding it so as to prevent it from biting him when the animal grabbed him on the arm inflicting an ugly wound. The dog was shot and the head was sent to Philadelphia by veterinarian Dr. F. N. Shierick. An examination showed that the dog had been suffering from rabies.

Mr. Bell was sent to Greenwood and after taking the dog to the hospital for a week was pronounced out of danger by the physicians. About the time he arrived home another mad dog scare had developed in the West Side, and the attending physician deemed it advisable to have him return to the hospital until the scare was over. Following his return home, the attack preyed constantly on his mind, and it was from hearing stories concerning mad dogs that he was frequently distressed by his friends and other persons with whom he would come in contact with, that he became so nervous that he finally collapsed. For the past two days his condition was critical and no hopes were entertained for his recovery. Yesterday Dr. T. J. Francis and J. F. Kerr held a consultation and following a very careful examination, found that there was nothing to be done for him.

Decided was born in Italy June 10, 1866, a son of Bruno and Angelina Caporaghi. He came to this country a number of years ago and in 1882 went into business on Main street, West Side. It was then he was given the name of Frank Bell and he lived all his life under that name. He later went to Scotland and considered a similar business which he later disposed of and with his family he moved to this city. On his return he went into business at Dunbar and since the disposal of his store last October, he has been retired. He was a member of the Italian Congregation Church and the Italian organizations. In addition to his widow he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Gaetano Corrado.

Funeral from the Corrado residence Monday morning at 9 o'clock and burial from the immaculate Congregation Church at 9 o'clock. Interment in St. Joseph's cemetery.

WOMAN GOES TO JAILFOR KILLING DOG

Declaring that she would go to jail rather than kill a dog which was killed by a victim of the West Side residents, Mrs. Samantha Koonitz of Eighth street went about an hour in the city lockup last night. She was released when her father appeared and paid her fine, promising to take the dog to his home in South Connellsville.

Mrs. Koonitz was arrested on information made by Layton Forsythe, a neighbor, and brought before the mayor for a hearing last evening. Mr. Forsythe and Harry Moon both testified that the dog had snipped at them and passed and expressed their belief that it would have bitten them if they had not been off.

B. F. McGraw, who said he lived "two miles away," testified to the dog's vicious disposition, declaring that it would not let anyone near it and wanted to know how it came that he knew so much about the dog when he lived so far away. McGraw said he knew, all right.

When informed that a city ordinance would require her to pay a fine of $2 and dispose of the dog, or else pay $2 for each day that it remained alive, Mrs. Koonitz declared that she would go to jail. Accordingly the police locked her up until her father came to her rescue.

"Why, if I was to kill that dog, it would kill my children," Mrs. Koonitz declared as she was led away.

Nothing Popular.

Hundreds of boys and girls were seen in the river yesterday and today.

MAYOR MARIETTA WILL WELCOME VISITING FIREMEN*City Head to Open Big Convention; Response to be Made by H. Coleman.

Mayor Rockwell Marietta will deliver an address of welcome to the firemen on the opening day of the big firemen's convention during the week of August 10 to 16. The response will be made by H. Coleman, mayor of Pittsburgh, who has been a member of the association since its organization.

The eleventh annual convention of the Western Pennsylvania Firemen's Association will be held in Connellsville just ten years ago the second week in August. At that time it was considered a wonder, but it is not in a wise compare with the present convention.

Three motor driven hose trucks have already been entered in the fire truck race. There are 18 modern motor fire trucks in the association and at least half these will contest for the $150 cash prize at the convention.

Smiling Bill Sharrak, the one man responsible for the birth of the Western Pennsylvania Firemen's Association, 21 years ago, says he'll bet his hat that Connellsville will have 25,000 firemen on her hands to take care of during the 1914 convention.

That millions of tons of coke breeze that have accumulated in mountainous piles throughout the coke region during its life time and that have for years been looked upon as so much waste may be turned into something of great value in industry seems foreshadowed by work now going on at the Old Meadow mills of the American Sheet & Tin Plate Company at Scottdale.

Coke breeze is the particles of coke that is not loaded as so much waste matter. It is true that it has been blighted and used as fuel, but this process is naturally a more or less expensive one, and has been predicted to a very small degree, so small in fact that it is not even known by many people.

The man with the Aladdin lamp is one who can take the piles of waste and put them under a boiler just as they come and use the waste for fuel. This has been done in a number of places, being taken as a fuel for engines which have been used for the experiment on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad in this section. There were physical drawbacks to this, however.

However, about a year ago an experiment was started at the Old Meadow mills and hand stoking was employed in using the breeze for boiler fuel. Since the Old Meadow plant closed down sometime ago for improvements and repairs the work has been left with the boiler which is being fitted up with mechanical devices which will turn the breeze under the boiler and which is believed will solve the problem. Especially built machinery for this purpose is now being put in by expert workmen and when the trials resume operations they will be using the breeze without screening for fuel.

Three immense new boilers are being installed and each set about nine feet above the ground, so that there will be room for pouring in the fuel at the disposal of the American Sheet & Tin Plate Company, and owned by the U. S. Steel Corporation, another subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, appears as if it would be something profitable for all concerned. The experiment will be watched with great interest, for this is the first time for the corporation that this use has been made of the coke breeze material, and further will prove a great conserving factor in the coal which is growing comparatively scarce for coke manufacture.

MISS RUSH LEADSDawson Girl Jumps to First Place in Queen Contest.

The women's queen contest is going along like a motor race, full of excitement and surprises. Several changes took place in the race since yesterday. Miss Curtis who has held the lead since the beginning of the contest, goes back to fourth place while Helen Smith jumps to the front with 402 votes to the good. Miss Laitlaw moved up to second and Miss Elizabeth Smith a close third. Other candidates further down the line show some gains and one near the bottom surprised to see any of these leading the contest any day.

The standing: Helen Belle Rush, 3,988; Lutha Laitlaw, 3,566; Elizabeth Smith, 3,513; Anna Curtis, 3,127; Laura Stafford, 3,772; Jessie Rude, 722; Nora Cook, 649; Anna Zickel, 405; Margaret Hickley, 298; Georgianna Minor, 200; Vesta Robinson, 93; Leah Noshkila, 65.

YOUTHFUL THIEF.Eight Year Old Boy Steals 15 Sticks of Soldier.

An eight-year-old son of W. L. Corbin, admitted to Special Officer Mitchell yesterday afternoon that he had stolen 15 sticks of soldier from the Munson theater company last week. George Munson, part owner of the theater, said he would not prosecute if the lad returned the goods. Up until this morning the boy had only returned four sticks.

FINED, ASKS RECEIPT.Cigarette Agent Wants to Get Money From Penn.

H. D. Johnson was fined $2.50 by the mayor last night for taking cigarette advertisements in the city without first procuring a license. Johnson explained that he was not familiar with the city laws, this being his first trip here. He also asked for and received a receipt for his fine so he could collect the money from his employer.

Peter Mancoske, John Chyck and Andrew Nister were arraigned before Alderman Donegan last evening charged by Andy Schreyer with trespassing on his property and picking berries from the defendant's place. The cost and the charges were withdrawn.

Gans will be glad to get in on the proposition if it is attempted again, they write.

FIRE AT VANDERBILTStore and Restaurant of J. H. Litten Guttered Early This Morning.

The confectionery store and restaurant of J. H. Litten in the north end of Vanderbilt was gutted by fire of mysterious origin about 2 o'clock this morning. The fire may be ascribed to the building and a like amount to the stock.

The fire was discovered by Alva Cochran and Ray Neville of Dawson who were returning from Shady Grove Park in an automobile. They sounded an alarm and the volunteer fire department responded quickly. They did good work and within about half an hour had the flames extinguished.

It is believed that crossed wires may have been the cause of the fire. The building was a one-story frame structure located near the Auto Sales & Repair Company's garage.

B. & O. MAY BUILD NEW STATION AT SOMERSET*General Manager Galloway Intimates That $70,000 May Be Spent There For Improvement.

Special to The Courier.
SOMERSET, July 24.—C. W. Galloway, of Baltimore, Md., general manager of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company, came to Somerset today in his special car and held a two hours' conference with a special committee of the Somerset board of trade concerning the erection of a new passenger station here.

Mr. Galloway agrees with the board of trade that a new depot is badly needed and assured the committee that work on the structure will be started within the next 60 days. He further declared that the new station will be completed not later than January 1, 1915.

The B. & O. manager is optimistic as to business prospects within the next year and said he felt sure that once his company gets started it will spend between $70,000 and $80,000 in building passenger and freight depots and installing new tracks to facilitate the handling of freight and passenger trains in Somerset, whose importance as a railroad center is growing steadily.

Mr. Galloway said this was his first visit to Somerset since 1891 and was much impressed with the phenomenal changes that have taken place on account of the county's mineral and industrial development.

ARSENIC IN DOUGHPaste Which Killed Holland's Chickens Was Poisoned.

When arraigned before Alderman O'Donovan at the West Side last evening on a charge of poisoning chickens Rebecca Provance of near Dunbar waived a hearing and the case was taken to court.

Last Monday information was made by Edward Holland, owner of the chickens, who lives next door to the Provances, that the Provances wanted him to move out and when he refused to do so they put poison in a doughy paste and scattered it over the garden. His chickens ate the dough and died, he averred.

The case was tried earlier in the week but was adjourned to today evening so that samples of the paste which were left with the alderman could be tested by a chemist to determine whether the poison charged was arsenic.

IF WOMEN ONLY KNEW

What a Heap of Happiness It Would Bring to Connellsville Homes.

Hard to do housework with an aching back.

Bring you hours of misery at leisure or at work.

It's women only knew the cause—

Backache pains often come from weak kidneys.

Don't waste much needless wear.

Don't's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys.

Read what a Connellsville citizen says:

Miss Lydia Lowe, North Tenth street, Connellsville, Pa., says: "I was bothered by sharp pains in my back for about two years. I had symptoms of dropsy and felt weak and tired when I got up in the morning. I tried many remedies and consulted my doctor, but I didn't get any better. I read in the paper about other people who had used Don't's Kidney Pills and had relief, so I got a box from Charles Drug Store. They brought me relief from the first and I kept on taking them until I was rid of kidney trouble."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Don't's Kidney Pills—the same that Miss Lowe had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

LEAVE CARE BEHIND.

Fix Things So You'll Enjoy Every Minute of Your Vacation.

Leave your valuables in a secure place before you go away. Gather up your jewelry, silverware and other precious things and place them in the strong safe deposit vault of the First National Bank. The expense is trifling, the security absolute, and the satisfaction great.—Adv.

THE ARMY WORM Quickly Destroyed by Creolol

The Army Worm (or black caterpillar) is working havoc upon lawns, gardens and farms in this section. This pest has already proven so destructive that the Department of Agriculture has issued a warning bulletin on the subject.

Creolol—the Great Germicide and Antiseptic, will kill the Army Worms—it kills all forms of insect life.

Creolol, used as a spray, one part Creolol to 100 parts water, is instant destruction to the Army Worm. Yet Creolol is harmless to man.

A 25 cent bottle of Creolol in 3 gallons of water will protect your lawn or garden against the Army Worm. If your drugist does not sell Creolol send us his name and 25 cents and we will mail to you, postpaid, a 25 cent bottle. Creolol has been used by physicians and hospitals for 20 years.

BARGAIN DAY.

Bargain Day has become an established institution in Connelville. Since its inception four years ago as a sort of joy offering to the whole community on the emancipation of the Yough river bridge.

It has become an annual event because it has been SIGNALLY SUCCESSFUL.

It has been successful because the Connelville merchants have offered to their customers from near and far nothing but REAL BARGAINS.

Bargain Day in Connelville is not a FIRE SALE or a FAKE OFFERING. Had it been anything but a square and honest deal, it would never have been repeated after the second trial, because THIS PEOPLE CAN'T BE FOOLED TWICE.

The Connelville merchants now join generally in making Bargain Day bigger and better than ever. In the columns of this issue, enlarged to sixteen pages to accommodate them, some seventy merchants announce their offerings. For the real good reasons mentioned, THEY ARE REAL VALUES.

Connelville will be a BARGAIN CENTER next Tuesday and Wednesday, July 28th and 29th.

EVERYBODY IS INVITED.

DEMOCRATIC POSTMASTERS.
The new Democratic postmasters at Fairbairn and Point Marion have been named at last. The Fairbairn Post has followed the advice of President Wilson in the business interests when he suggested that the operation would be painful, but that the patient would feel better after it was over.

The patient in that case was business. Business will probably feel better after the operation is over, even though it may be minus a leg or an arm. It will at least know what it has to stand on or to work with.

But it's slightly different with the people. The agony of the disappointed applicants is over, it is true, but the agony of the Unfortunate Candidate has just begun. Among those disappointed seekers many have had the promise to the ear broken for the time in some cases actual promises have been unfulfilled. These promises are now rebuffed by promises to the Unfortunate Candidate when he is broken to a Unfortunate hope when the value of this fall term of some of them will perhaps make no promises at all.

An innocent and confident student sometimes the making of a even is sharp.

A HANDSLIDE.
Times may be better in some places and worse in others, but business in the industry of sections of the country has been severely depressed and so it is. Some slight signs of recovery are thought to be noted, and the consensus of non-partisan opinion is that there will be a moderate recovery this fall after business knows just exactly what it has to face at the hands of the makers of Washington.

In the meantime, however, public sentiment is undoubtedly sick of Democratic administration, and nothing that the Democratic Party's organization and means may do or say between now and fall, nor any chance for better or worse in the business situation, will have any effect upon the political situation.

A Republican landslide is on its way.

What the Uniontown New Freedom Standard knows about the coal trade and the coke trade would fill a large book. It knows its usual business yesterday. We have not time nor space today to enter into this matter, but our contemporary may rest assured that it will be given proper consideration. It will, in fact, be a great piece of work.

The steel business is running 65% good and 35% psychological.

The entomologists tell us the army worm is downed, and the humbling of popular discontent and dissent tell us that the Democratic party is in the same boat.

Pennsylvania, the victim of Republican administration, is the only state in the Union that is free from debt.

Dawson has a building boom. It is strictly Dawson. The Postmaster makes the announcement with pleasure. There's nothing unfair about this paper. Another lie nailed.

Victims of alleged mad dogs should not lose courage. The Postmaster makes a demonstrated case. Some patients die from fright rather than from bite.

The dynamite can factory at Allen refuses went up, but in fairness to the Connelville New Freedom Standard we cheerfully state that this was no fault of the Democratic administration.

The vicious dog should be chained up or eliminated from peaceful society.

Perhaps it might be well to parole the participants in the South of July 1st. The parole has been applied to some cases. Besides, the public is losing interest in this matter.

The Pittsburgh coal trade is black, but the slack is being taken up at 45¢ per ton.

Oakford Park was full of Force this week, but they were mostly tame.

Connellsville's Biggest and Best Store

124 WEST MAIN STREET

R E A L B A R G A I N S

FINER AND MORE FASHIONABLE GOODS, IN BIGGER AND BETTER ASSORTMENTS, AT ASTONISHINGLY LOW PRICES

WHAT IS BARGAIN DAY?

A few years ago the merchants of Connellsville set two days of mid-summer for demonstrating the advantages of buying in this city. By agreement, each merchant chose some item of in-demand merchandise from his stock and cut its price decisively—this to make it emphatically worth-while to visit Connellsville, even from afar. Patrons, who supply all their needs for a long time to come, and at a great saving over usual prices. From the start-off, Bargain Days have been a grand success—thanks to the sincerity with which each store did its part.

Naturally, you would look to the biggest and best store for the most and finest bargains. A store can only offer what it has, so it stands to reason that you will get truer bargains—and spend less—in the store that has the most, and is known for its progressiveness, honesty of purpose and service-giving. Since last Bargain Day this Wright-Metzler store has extended its boundaries, enlarged the assortments in all departments and beautified and modernized the many selling-places. A big orderly store will hold more goods than will a little store, and its opportunity for buying splendid things for less than the smaller store must pay, is greatest. 1914 Bargain Days will find us with more attractive merchandise than last year. This because our enlarged stocks contain finer things than you can get at other stores. All of our goods belong to this season; all are high-quality, plain to very fashionable, fresh, clean and in the latest styles. Bargain Day assortments are larger than elsewhere, and Bargain Day prices, as this advertisement shows, are wonderfully low for the quality of goods they cover.

1914 Bargain Days are Tuesday and Wednesday, July 28-29

UNION SUPPLY HAS A MODEL STORE AT ITS PHILLIPS PLANT

Brick Structure Replaces Frame One Destroyed by Fire Recently.

BEST EQUIPPED IN THE REGION

Every Modern Convenience for Handling
Its Goods Has Been Installed and Patrons Get the Best of Everything at Lowest Possible Prices.

Phillips, the model coke plant of the H. C. Truck Coke Company, can boast of the largest and most modern Union Supply Company store in the region. While the company is known all over the region for its excellent stores, and its efforts to please its patrons, the store at Phillips is the standard store. The old store was destroyed by fire some time ago, and in its stead a handsome brick structure has been erected. It is located in the central part of the town and its spacious and well kept town adds greatly to the appearance of the village.

It is equipped with all modern conveniences, and the residents are afforded everything in the way of clothes, wearing apparel and household furnishings, without leaving their home town to make their purchases. The store is greatly appreciated by the people and although the company has competition in nearly every plant, the people realize that they are given better value and a better line of goods at the company store and that is where they buy. This company makes a special effort to handle up to date lines of goods, and to keep its stock at the same level.

A feature of the store is the variety of goods in which the company and its employees take great pride. It is a store that is completely up to date and is equipped with all the latest conveniences.

The immediate room auditorium is devoted to groceries, domestic and foreign goods, etc. Modern display cases have been installed along the entire length of both sides of the room and in this manner goods are displayed to a great advantage with no loss of space. The department is up to date and the department in the shoe room, which will compare favorably with any of the shoe stores in this section. Adjoining this is the men's and boys' clothing and cap department. Recently displayed in these departments are many different styles of clothing, which for the display of hats and caps, no effort has been made. It provides and there are different departments for the various styles and sizes, making the clerk to show his stock with little difficulty.

There is also a small room used only for the buying of orders taken sent monthly. On the second floor, which is devoted mostly to furniture and other home hold goods, are two more furnished modern. It is a place for the use of the employees who keep in the building.

In connection with the store is a recreation parlor and confectionery store, which so far has been quite a success. This is a place which is smaller, but built somewhat similar to the Phillips store. It is also equipped with a refreshment parlor and of both town the residents patronize them for food.

SITE OF OLD INDIAN VILLAGE IS NOW ALMOST FORGOTTEN

Historic Spot Near Last Liberty Once
Inhabited by Part of the Algonquin Tribe.

An old Indian village of unusual interest, though almost unknown by residents of the village, is to be seen within a half mile of Last Liberty, near a creek. It is a place of much interest to many of whom visit it from time to time. It is a common place, known as the Indian grave yard. In it were buried many of the Algonquin tribe which inhabited Canada, New England, New York and part of Pennsylvania about 200 years ago. Their village was located just where the house of Edward A. Hill was subsequently erected.

The Algonquians placed their dead in shallow graves, covering the bodies with stones. The graves are full of such stones. There have grown up and lay if any relics are now found there of residents of this section. A few years ago a road was cut through the site of the village and the remains of the old graves were discovered. Hundreds of arrow and spear heads, knife blades, and pieces of pottery of Indian manufacture were found.

Four miles north of this place is a road which is said to have been the site of the village. It is a place of much interest to many of whom visit it from time to time. It is a common place, known as the Indian grave yard. In it were buried many of the Algonquin tribe which inhabited Canada, New England, New York and part of Pennsylvania about 200 years ago. Their village was located just where the house of Edward A. Hill was subsequently erected.

It was here that a large fort known as Fort Hill was situated on the left place of ground overlooking the river. The fort was owned by the Dutch and was destroyed by the British in 1757. The site of the fort is now a park and is a place of much interest to many of whom visit it from time to time.

Woman's World

Titled Daughters of Society Leaders Make Newport Season Gay.

DUTCHESS OF MARLBOROUGH.

Newport is congratulating itself on the brilliancy of its social season. There are many distinguished guests present and expected. The beautiful and clever young Duchess Consuelo of Marlborough is the guest of her mother, Mrs. G. H. Belmont, at Marble House. Other titled daughters of American families who may take part in the social festivities of Newport during the season are Lady Granard, the daughter of Mrs. Gordon Miller; Lady Camilla, daughter of Mrs. William Watts Sherman; Countess Szechenyi, daughter of Mrs. Vanderbilt; and Countess Guy de Castelle.

The rank, beauty and public spirit of the Duchess of Marlborough have made her exceedingly popular in London society. Even Queen Mary has shown her liking for the young American woman who has been so generous with her wealth in relieving the London poor and devoting time and money to many movements for public betterment.

Her entertainments at Sunderland House are brilliant affairs, often graced by the presence of some member of the royal family.

Like her mother, Mrs. Belmont, the duchess is a suffragist, though not a militant one.

Her two boys, the elder of whom, the Marquis of Blandford, is heir to the dukedom, are in England in the care of their tutors.

THE VINE SCREEN.

Beautiful Effect in Nature That May Be Copied for the Lawn.

There is a beautiful curtain of hanging vines, stretching from one tree to another in a certain country place. It is the outgrowth of years, but it could be easily copied on a smaller scale by any one who has patience.

The curtain in question hangs from two old elm trees which stand about twenty feet apart. Virginia creeper is trained to grow up the trunk of the two trees to a height of about fifteen feet, and then it is trained along a strong wire fastened from one tree to the other.

The long tendrils of the creeper have grown many feet, and they hang down and intertwine until now they form a curtain, thick and strong, which reaches to within a few feet of the ground.

This curtain would make a satisfactory substitute for a conventional hedge in some situations. It could be copied with one of the thick growing annual vines, like hop or clematis, or with a vine of balloon vine. Such a curtain could be trained to hang on one end of a sunny porch or veranda.

Of course the vines forming it would need gentle urging. The soil in which they are rooted should be rich and deep, and the vines should be scrupulously watered.

It might be better, in a sunny position, not to train the tendrils of the vine over wire, for wire becomes excessively hot and sometimes burns. Strong cord would be better.

Two Summer Hints.

To remove flyspecks from gilt picture frames beat the white of an egg lightly and add a half teaspoonful of baking soda; wipe the frames with this and then wash with a soft cloth. The legs of silk hose or the long arms cut from silk gloves make excellent cloths for this purpose. They are easily kept clean with soap and water and are easier to use than cloths.

To clean a willow chair scrub with soap and water, rinsing thoroughly in tepid water in which a tablespoonful of borax has been dissolved. This will prevent its yellowing. Then pour warm water over the chair and set it in the sun to dry to keep it from getting brittle. This also serves to tighten the willow.

Leather Furniture.

Milk that is heated is excellent for cleaning leather furniture. Use soft cotton cloths and rub all over to take off spots and dirt. Then take a mixture of kerosene, melted and mixed with turpentine, one part wax to two of the turpentine. This should be rubbed in and soft, clean cloths used for rubbing off so dust will not settle.

Little minds are taxed and subdued by misfortune, but great minds rise above it.—Washington Irving.

Kitchen Notes

The Fireless Cooker.

Make or buy a fireless cooker. It is unsuited for stews, cereals, puddings and vegetables. A fireless cooker keeps the kitchen cool, saves labor and fuel and does not encourage flies, because there is no odor of cooking to attract them.

To manufacture a homemade cooker take a large wooden basket or box not less than sixteen inches high and fifteen inches across, an eight inch granite dinner pail holding about a gallon, with a tight fitting cover and some excelsior.

Push the excelsior into the wooden bucket to the depth of about three inches and on this place the granite pail and pack the excelsior tightly around it to the top. If properly packed the pail can be lifted out of the excelsior without disturbing the packing. To cook vegetables prepare in the usual way, put in the pail and boil for ten or twenty minutes in the pail.

Then place the pail in a box, pack the excelsior around it and pay no further attention to it until ready to serve the vegetables, which should be in a short time. However, as different cookers have different heat retaining properties the time can be best determined by experiment. With a fireless cooker there is no danger of having burned or scorched food.

Asparagus For Hot Weather.

Asparagus has medicinal qualities that are beneficial at this season. There are many ways of serving it, but the simplest way is the best. The tough ends should be cut off and the remaining stalks bound together in small bunches with a strip of muslin. Boil in just enough water to cover until tender, but not soft. Cook about twenty minutes if the asparagus is young and fresh.

Remove the stalks from the water, drain thoroughly and place on toast. With it can be served a sauce made of half a cupful of the water in which it has been boiled, a tablespoonful of butter, level tablespoonful of flour and half a cupful of rich cream.

The latter should be thoroughly mixed with the flour before it is added to the hot water and cream. An old fashioned way of serving asparagus is to cut the tender portions of the stalk into half inch pieces and boil them until they are tender, thoroughly drain and serve with butter, pepper and salt.

Peach and Rice Meringue.

Put rice on the fire in a saucepan of cold water. Stir occasionally while it is heating. Let boil five minutes; then drain in a sieve and pass cold water from the faucet through it. This is called blanched rice. Now cook a cupful of blanched rice and salt in three cupfuls of milk until tender and dry, add three egg yolks, one-quarter cupful each of butter, sugar and whipped cream. Make a border of rice on a serving dish that will stand the heat of the oven. Surround this with halves of peaches (fresh or canned), with skins removed. Inside the border place sliced peaches and rice in layers, sprinkling the peaches with sugar and giving the whole a dome shape. Cover with meringue, dust with sugar and set in oven about ten minutes.

Huckleberry Muffins.

To make these take two cupfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a cupful of milk, an egg, a teaspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of sugar, a tablespoonful of butter and a cupful of huckleberries. Sift the flour, baking powder, salt and sugar into a bowl; add the milk slowly, the well beaten egg and melted butter; mix well and add the huckleberries, which have been carefully picked over. Brush muffins with hard, put a spoonful of the mixture in each and bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven.

The After Meal Rest.

One should rest after meals if it is at all possible for a quarter of an hour at least. This is especially necessary after the child meal.

Many people are addicted to the short nap after dinner, which is a good habit if the sleep is only a short one. But if the sleep is of two hours' duration it is decidedly bad for both digestion and health.

Baked Asparagus Tips.

Boil asparagus tips in salted water until tender. Have ready some slices of buttered toast. Arrange the asparagus in small mounds on the toast, sprinkle with buttered breadcrumbs and a little grated cheese and set in hot oven for five or eight minutes, just long enough to get perfectly hot. Pour over dish, just before serving, a little hot cream.

Raspberry Turnovers.

Roll out pie crust and cut in sections about four or five inches square. Put a spoonful of raspberry jam in center, fold over twice and press down the two ends and trim off with a sharp knife. Brush the tops with milk and bake in a hot oven.

Summer Economy.

Practice economy in small things. When using the oven for roasting bake a pie or pudding, bake the potatoes, eliminate the use of the other burners. Don't burn gas for toast to save a few pieces of stale bread.

There is no substitute for thorough going, ardent and sincere earnestness.—Dickens.

FABLES IN SLANG

GEORGE ADE

THE NEW FABLE OF THE ROISTERING BLADES WHO ABSORBED THE MAGNETIC CURRENT DIRECT FROM THE CENTRAL STORAGE PLANT.

Out in the Country belt of the Hibernian there is a stunted Flag Station. Number Six, carrying one Day Coach and a Combination Magazine and Stock Car, would pause long enough to unload a Bucket of Oysters and take on a Crate of Eggs.

In this Settlement the Landing Citizens still wear Gum Arctics with large Buckles and Parched Corn is served at Social Functions.

Two highly respected Money-Grubbers of pure American Stock hold forth in this lonesome Kraal and did a General Merchandizing.

One was called Milt in honor of the Blind Poet, and the other claimed the following brief Moniker, to wit: Henry.

Neither of them had to pay the Woman who did the Housework.

Henry and Milt went what they could during the Daytime and always stood ready to trim up the Dark Lanterns and operate at Night.

These two Pillars of Society had matched at the head of the Women and School Child in the Dry Movement which banished King Alcohol from the Fair City.

As a result of their efforts liquor was not to be sold in this Town except at the Dry Stores and Restaurants or in the Cellular underlying any well-ventilated Home.

For Eleven Months and Three Weeks out of every Calendar year these two played Right and Left Tackle in the Suburban Battle to Uplift the Community and better the Moral Tone.

They walked the Straight and Narrow, near a Highway, Clerk Reins, Hobbies and Interference Pads.

Very often a Mother would hurry her little Loret to the Front Window when Milt or Henry passed by carrying under his arm a Package of Corn Flakes and the Report of the General Secretary in Charge of Chinese Missionary Work.

"Look," she would say, indicating Loret Paragon with indignant finger, "if you ate a dash of that Corn and Loret, your Catechism you may grow up to be like Milt."

But, a few Autumns ago the time the First in the Stock Market and Wall Street is in the Show, Milt and Henry, would do a Shyster Expedition from the Home Nest and Wing away toward the Flying Sun.

The called a Tall Tailer because both of them fought and both of them fell.

At Home neither of them would Kink a Tail for any Dislike more worldly than a Jockey M. P. Show depicting a large number of Lucerne People falling over Precipices.

The Fine Off came on the Trip to the City. To wit: the Fire Show.

Every Nickel that could be held out went into the Little Tin Bank for they knew that when the lot together 100 of these Washers a man up in New York would let them have some Tiffany Ware of Rare Vintage with a Napkin wrapped around it as an Evidence of Good Faith.

On Winter Evenings Milt would don the Velvet Slippers and wrill his Lower Extremities on the outside for two such an surrounds every high price Base Burner.

While thus cringing himself he loved to read News Notes from Gotham, signed Carolyn Stevenson who seemed to have the Entree into the Best Homes.

He did not know that Carolyn had tangled Whiskers and jotted down his Boudoir Bores in a Weinshub, using a borrowed Pen.

So he believed what it said in the Paper about a well-known Heir to a having the Teeth of her favorite Pomeranian filled with Radium at a Cost of $125,000.

Whenever he got this kind of a Pretty Pick into the Day Life of the Modern Babylon, he began to breathe through his Nose and tug at the Leash.

He longed to dash away on the Erie to look at the Iron Fence in front of the Home of the Pomeranian.

When the Day of Days arrived Milt and Henry would be seen at the Depot with congested Suit Cases and their Necks all newly shaven and powdered for the approaching Jubilee.

Each had pinned into his collar made Suit enough currency to lift the Debt on the Ear-Canoe.

Already there were smoking Poodle Cigars and there were a mere Hint of what the Future had in Store.

While waiting for Number Six they wired for Two Rooms and Two Baths and to have Belays waiting in the Manture Parlor.

Up at the Junction, where they caught the limited they moved into the fifth and began to peel from the Hull.

The Steak ordered in the Dining Car came over the sides of the Table and they scrambled to see which one would pay the Check.

As for the Boy in the Buffet every time he heard a Sound like 25 cents he came out of the Dark Room and began to open small Original Packages.

When they approached the Metrop-olls, via the Tunnel, they thought they were riding in on a Curtiss Bi-Plane.

Between the Taxi and the Registrar they stopped to shake hands with an Old Friend who wore a White Suit and was known from Coast to Coast as the originator of a Pickle-Up which called for everything back of the Working Board except the License and the Bicarbonate of Soda.

The Clerk lut on to remember them and quoted a Bargain Rate of Six Dollars, meaning by the Day and not by the Month.

They wanted to know if that was the Best he had and he said it was, as the Sons of Ohio were having a Dinner in the Main Banquet Hall.

So they ordered a lot of Supplies sent up to each Room and wanted to know if there was a Good Show in Town—something that had been denounced by the Press.

The Clerk told of one in which Asbestos Scenery was used and Flouren had to stand in the Wings, so they tore over to the News Stand and bought two on the Aisle for $3 from a pale Goddess who kept looking at the Ceiling all during the Negotia-

The gown pictured here is of apricot linen with a long tunic, part of which is arranged in box plaits. The kimono blouse is cut with a low front, into which is fitted a vest and three collar of white organdie. The gown is adorned with white bone buttons and has a grille of patent leather.

A Jumping Bone. The next time you have chicken for dinner save the wishbone. Tie a strong string double across the wishbone when it is clean and dry between the wish ends.

Put a piece of stick between the two lines of the string and twist around and around away from the flat side of the shaft of the bone, on which a little beewax is stuck to hold the end of the stick while you lay the "road" wax down on the table for a moment. The twisted cord pulls so on the stick that the stick and soon comes off the wax. The stick springs against the table and up goes Mr. Road with a jump and a hop. It is fun. Try it.

Striped Sweaters. For summer wear the striped sweater of silk is undoubtedly the cry of the hour. In green, lavender, blue, white and range this beautiful and costly bit of sports wear with its cash is particularly effective with the white skirt or the white suit.

A Smart Boy's Essay. Julius was asked to write an essay on "Patrick Henry." He wrote this: "Patrick was not a very bright boy. He had blue eyes and light hair. He got married and then cried, 'Give me liberty or give me death!'"

Then, being assailed by the Pangs of Hunger, he went out and purchased Cream Soda at 20 cents a Flask after which they paid to get those Hats and next Morning they were back in their rooms entirely surrounded by Towels.

On the third Afternoon, Milt suspended Fall Buying long enough to send his Family a Book of Views showing the Status of Peter Cooper, the Aviary in Bronx Park and Brooklyn Bridge by Moonlight.

They with a Clear Conscience, he went back and put his Foot on the Ball.

Milt said somebody had fed him a Steam Radiator and put Mirrors on him and unscrewed his Knee Caps.

Otherwise, he was O. K.

Henry kept waving the English Sparrows out of the Way and asking why so many Bells were ringing.

Two weeks later, at the Union Revival Services, when Rev Polindexter gave out that rousing old Stand-By which begins "Yield Not to Temptation," Milt and Henry arose from the Unshowered Seats and sang their foot Wounds off.

LONG TUNICS.

They Are in the Ascendant For Gowns of All Types.

The long tunic is worn on every type of costume, from the street suit to the negligee. Fluffy lingerie frocks of sheer organdie and embroidery have the staid and stately tunic, and if there must be ruffles the ruffles are put on the tunic.

Some of the long tunics worn in the street are buttoned down in front, others show buttons all the way down the back. Some of these tunics are quite simple in cut, with a slight flare at the sides and a very straight line at the

CARBAJAL A MAN OF HIGH CULTURE

New Head of Mexico is Gentle Mannered.

REGARDED AS ABLE LAWYER

He is a White and Not a Black Mexican in That He is of Almost Pure Castilian Origin. Nothing of the Hellion About Him. 48 years Old.

Francisco Carbajal, who became provisional president of Mexico to succeed General Victoriano Huerta, despite the fact that he is only forty eight years old has been for many years considered one of the leading lawyers of Mexico. He is a warm personal friend and by many considered a protégé of Francisco I. Madero, who as foreign minister in the last cabinet of General Porfirio Diaz succeeded that old warrior statesman in the presidency of Mexico. De la Barra, however, succeeded to the provisional presidency with the full consent and approval of the revolutionists.

So far at least as Mexico City is concerned, Carbajal is now the ad interim president of Mexico, and as such his personality becomes interesting. To begin with, he is of the Mexican aristocracy. There is nothing of the hellion about him. He is gentle mannered and gentle spoken. He is highly educated. He is a white and not a black Mexican in that he is of almost pure Castilian origin. Carbajal practically was unknown outside of Mexico prior to the spring of 1911. He had been for a few years prior to April of that year a justice of the Mexican supreme court, an office which he owed to the friendship of Porfirio Diaz, who previously had shown his friendship for him when for a brief time he sent him to Costa Rica as the Mexican minister.

Treating With Madero.

When in the spring of 1911 the fall of the Diaz regime was admitted even in Mexico City to be a matter of only a few weeks it became necessary for the Diaz government to treat with Francisco I. Madero, whose irregular and ragged troops were then sweeping triumphantly over the entire northern part of the republic. Madero just as Carranza and Villa have recently done, had announced his intention of continuing his victorious campaign to the very gates of the capital, and it was to prevent that humiliating end to his own continued dictatorship that Diaz consented, on the advice of his best friends, to attempt to make terms with Madero. Madero's army was then encamped outside Juarez, the adobe city opposite El Paso, and was threatening daily to storm the most important of the Mexican border towns.

So it was that on April 23, 1911, President Diaz announced that he had appointed as a peace commissioner to treat with Madero Justice Francisco Carbajal of the Mexican supreme court. He notified Madero of Carbajal's appointment, and the victorious rebel chieftain named Francisco Madero, Sr., his aged father, Jose Pino Suarez, who was to be his vice president, and was to be his companion in death a year later, and Dr. Vasquez Gomez as the revolutionary representative to discuss terms of peace with Carbajal.

On May 2, 1911, Carbajal arrived in El Paso, and the next morning he met the Madero commissioners. The meeting place was under a cottonwood tree at the foot of a barren hill on the outskirts of Juarez, near the Rio Grande. Madero was present, and at the end of the conference it was announced that peace was in sight. Matters did not proceed satisfactorily, however, and on May 6 Madero announced that the armistice with Diaz was terminated, and two days later the battle of Juarez was fought, and the city fell into the hands of the rebels. The taking of Juarez broke the backbone of the Diaz government, and on May 15 peace negotiations were resumed.

Carbajal Is Honored.

Carbajal this time treated direct with Madero, and six days later, at 10:35 p. m. May 21, the peace agreement was signed that ended the Madero revolution, sent Diaz into exile and subsequently elevated Madero to the presidency was signed by Carbajal as the representative of Diaz and by Madero as the head of the revolution.

When Huerta was made provisional president following the killing of Madero Carbajal was one of the few lawyers to whom he looked for expert advice. Huerta showered honors on Justice Carbajal. First he sent him to London as Mexican ambassador, but soon recalled him, and when Carbajal arrived home he named him chief justice of the supreme court. In January of last year it was said he for a time considered the advisability of sending Carbajal to Washington as an emissary to the government of the United States. This plan, however, was abandoned, and Carbajal remained in the City of Mexico as the chief justice of the highest court.

The name of Carbajal was in November last first mentioned as the probable successor of Huerta. At that time Huerta promptly denied the accuracy of the report, and when Secretary of State Bryan was asked about the rumor he replied that he had never before heard of Justice Carbajal.

Describing Love.
In "The Desert and Mrs. Ajax" by Edward S. Moffat, one of the charac-terists, an American girl, thus describes love:
"Oh, Amy (she says), isn't it splendid when you love some one? You just want to sacrifice—and give up—and work—and be devoured by fire or drowned in ice water if it will do any good. Sometimes it makes you feel, oh, so strong! And then, almost right away, your knees get wobbly, and you just turn into a cobblerstone inside. And one minute he's looking at you in the most wonderful way, and you feel as if you were floating on a lovely pink cloud, eating ice cream smothered in violets, and the next thing you know something terrible happens, and every-thing goes to pieces, and you see that he doesn't love you after all—and, oh-h-h!"

Tanful.

CHAPTER XIV.

More Feathers.

Dick's interview with Brand was barren of results—for Dick. He felt no remorse over the manner of his termination. It was a blow struck when a man must strike. Brand had judged him, or pretended he had. Either that, or, in place over the reporter's knowledge of his action, he had lost control of that usual deliberate self-possession and hurried out the result. In any event, he had overstepped the mark and paid the price.

Dick's only regret was his failure to accomplish the purpose of his visit although he could not have told exactly what that was. Within himself he argued that he was acting for love; trying to save his friend from the humiliating sequel that was sure to follow Brand's underhanded tactics with Mrs. Reynolds. But for four weeks he had known of these clandestine meetings and he was still in ignorance of them. He was sincere in his desire to help his friend and a half dozen times he had been on the point of telling him. But something stopped him. He thought of confronting Jane, but the idea was quickly put aside. Dick stood a little in awe of Jane. Admiration he had a plenty, or had had, but there was something more. It was reluctance to surrender this admiration he had a plenty, or had had, but there was something more. It was reluctance to surrender this admiration he had a plenty, or had had, but there was something more.

But the reporter had not come unprepared. There are some credulous fools who believe that no one ever knows the winner of a derby until the race is run; that the telegram is never read until the triumphant tears the envelope; that when ten thousand men lose money on the stock market and five hundred win, it is just luck or better judgment that turns the trick. But Dick knew better. Dick knew that Tennessee Coal and Iron had dropped fifteen points and that Brand had sold Dick knew that the Hudson Cement company, which was Brand, was furnishing the cement for the Pecos River dam, and Dick knew that the Western Construction company, which paid Bob to analyze the cement that went into the jobs, was building the dam. Dick knew something about millions.

He went back to the office of his paper after his encounter with Brand and was sitting chatting idly with his city editor when a boy announced that there was a telephone call for him. He went into the booth.

"Hello, Dick," called the voice of Reynolds. "Tomorrow's Wednesday, isn't it?"

"It will be, old top," the reporter answered. "If some obstreperous planet doesn't get in our way and mix things up a bit."

Reynolds laughed over the phone. "Accuracy," he said. "There you go again. But that's the very thing I want you for. Dick, I've got the biggest job on my hands for tomorrow that I've ever had—that is, from a literary standpoint. Got to prepare an extensive report on the Pecos dam contract and I thought if you were coming over for the usual debauch you might come a little earlier and lend a helping hand."

"Surest thing you know, I'll be there. What time?"

"All right. I'll be there like a duck. How's the missus?"

"Poor Bob! Their quarrel was fresh in his mind. But the telephone saved him."

"Fine," he answered. "So long."

That evening Reynolds said nothing to his wife about the work to be done at home. He had no object in keeping it from her, but since their final disagreement over Brand and his offer both had felt constrained and distant. It was simply that there was nothing in their conversation that led up to his telling and neither had been in the mood for exchanging confidences. In the morning it was the same. Consequently, when he left she was in ignorance that he and Dick were to come early in the afternoon.

Shortly after luncheon Jane received a telegram from Brand announcing his intention to call that afternoon. She summoned Frieda.

"Go over to Mrs. Collins and ask her if she can run over for a minute," she ordered.

While the girl was gone the doorbell rang. Jane can't answer it with a little glad cry of expectancy. She was looking for a package from a Fifth avenue store and she was not disappointed. She opened the box and took out an up-to-date automobile coat. It was a handsome garment, not so very expensive, from the standpoint of those who indulge in such luxuries, but quite out of reach of the Reynolds' humble means. This was the most showy article she had bought with Brand's money and it was a bold step.

Jane carried the box and paper into the bedroom and carried a moment at her mirror. Naturalists tell us that the peacock strut and spread his feathers. What woman will not fix and primp at the sight of new plumage? By law of man Jane had no right to this coat. By law of nature she had every right. When a wise Creator made the fur and feather covered animals of the universe he used his greatest handiwork upon the males. There is the highly colored plumage, the long, soft hair, the deep-tinted manes and vivid spots. But when he made woman from a mere rib of a man he cast the mold in perfect form and made her worthy of all the embellishment that man can bestow. From creation down woman has claimed her right and it has been man's pleasure to give. Now and then we find males who like to deck their persons. Native chiefs have sold a kingdom for a string of beads, but they were fools. Fine feathers are, in truth, a woman's right.

When Jane re-entered the room Frieda had returned and was gingerly feeling and stroking the new coat as if it were some animated object that might go or purr at her caresses. Jane, in sharp tones startled her from her worship.

"Is Mrs. Collins coming?" she asked.

"Yesum."

"Then you had better hurry lunch."

"Yesum," the girl agreed, but still lost in rapt admiration of the coat she looked away as if to turn her back would be a grave insult.

"Oh, my dearie, dearie!" was Mrs. Collins' greeting, for Jane had donned the coat again before she opened the door to her neighbor's knock. "You've got a motor coat!"

"Yesum," said Jane in mock imitation of her maid. "Isn't it a beauty?"

"Yes, dear, it certainly is," Mrs. Collins agreed, "but it seems to me it's a little impracticable for Station Island unless," she added, with a little switch of her head, "you expect some more prosperity and a car of your own!"

"That's not impossible," Jane retorted—for Mrs. Collins' voice had an unmistakable tone of pique. "But I didn't have that in mind when I got it. Mr. Brand is coming over again today and that's why I called you over. You'll chaperon, won't you?"

Mrs. Collins walked up to Jane with arms akimbo. She looked not at her neighbor, however, but at her neighbor's coat.

"I'm afraid not," she answered.

"Why not, Mrs. Collins?" Jane exclaimed. "You're the only chaperon I've got. Surely you're not going to forsake me?"

Jane's neighbor, for all her credit, was not without a sense of humor or the means of expressing it. And Jane's rapid progression in modes of dress and amusement had begun to rankle. There was just a perception of a curl to her rather pretty mouth as she asked:

"Are you sure that you need a chaperon now?"

Jane flushed. She could not mistake the other's meaning.

"Why, Mrs. Collins!" she exclaimed. "You know I wouldn't go out with Mr. Brand alone. And you know, too, that he comes here on business. He's just as anxious to have you along as I am."

"Is he?"

"Why certainly."

"Well, I feel better now. I guess I hadn't noticed it. But just the same, dearie, I don't believe I can go with you. I'll be frank. You're getting to be too fine a bird for me. I mean the clothes."

"Nonsense, Mrs. Collins. I haven't any more than you, only I've been getting mine all at once. Why, I used to feel awfully ashamed of myself when I went out with you."

"I know," her neighbor agreed, "but it's different now. Look at that coat. Won't I look great in that car with you and your millionaire?"

Jane snapped her up.

"Mrs. Collins!" she exclaimed. "Whatever you do or don't do, please don't talk to me that way. My millionaire! You simply mustn't say such things. I won't have it, that's all."

"Well, dearie, if we're going to quarrel I think I'll be going. Only don't be foolish. I didn't mean you owned Brand or that he owned you. I have a good time myself now and then and nobody knows better than I do that if a woman's careful she can play with fire and not burn even a little finger."

"But I tell you, you've got the wrong idea," Jane retorted. "Mr. Brand and I have a certain business transaction on and if you won't take my word for it who will? I can't explain what it is at present, but if it goes through, Mrs. Collins, I'll help Bob more than you have any idea. It's a big thing."

"It must be," the neighbor agreed. "It takes long enough to close it."

"But you'll go with us today, won't you?" Jane coaxed. "Perhaps, this will be the last time."

She knew that she spoke the truth,

too. She had nothing to offer Brand now but one desperate move and this she had determined to make, if necessary. If Bob was so blinded to her advice and proffered his business opinions to her love, he could keep his opinions and his terrible sense of honesty and love her. Jane had reached this conviction after the scene with her husband on his return. She contemplated nothing that would compromise herself or her husband. She had merely decided on a separation as a last resort to bring him to his senses, and if this failed—if he would not cross the chasm and come to her—well, they would see then who was the stronger.

Unquestionably she must see Brand today. It was only fair to him to let him know that she had made no progress as his agent; that apparently the "conspiracy" was a failure. So she must mollify her chaperon at any cost.

"Please come with us today," Mrs. Collins, she coaxed again. "I'll feel awfully obliged to you and if it's just the coat you're worrying about you can wear it. Just the same old height. Mr. Brand'll think it's yours."

"Tut, tut, child," Mrs. Collins replied consolingly. "There's no use wasting fine feathers on such an old bird as me. It isn't only the coat I'm thinking about. I've been in the back of that motor car, playing plain gooseberry ever since you've been going out with Mr. Brand; and in front you, and him whispered about something I knew nothing about. Oh, it's been mighty thrilling, I can tell you."

"But you've enjoyed the rides, haven't you?"

"My goodness, yes. I've had a little more fresh air and I guess that's the state of life over here. But don't worry, dearie, I was young myself once and I might have wanted some one to do the same for me."

"Then run along and get ready," Jane urged, for she saw that her neighbor persisted in her interpretation of the cause of the outings and realized the uselessness of denial.

Mrs. Collins, having succumbed to Jane's entreaties, now attributed her perverseness to nervousness. While her hostess was disposing a bit of pancea for all such ills the doorbell rang. Mrs. Collins jumped to her feet.

"Goodness!" she exclaimed, "I hope that isn't Mr. Brand. He'll put me on the running board if he sees me in this get-up."

She quickly discarded a white apron that she wore over a silk petticoat of large gray and black plaids, pulled down, a tight-fitting silk waist and bunched herself with her luxuriant hair, the untidiness of which was in keeping with her morning attire.

Jane, having called to her aide-de-camp in the kitchen, without avail, went to the door herself.

"It can't be Mr. Brand," she said. "It's too early for him."

It wasn't. It was Dick. He came in with his usual bluster of good nature and greeting, bowed obsequiously to Mrs. Collins and extended a hand to Jane.

"Greeting, Queen Olga!" he cried. "Thank you. You find me well."

"The village post," Mrs. Collins commented. She sat down with head erect and surveyed him with infinite scorn.

"Dick!" Jane exclaimed. "You surprised me."

"What, on Wednesday?"

"I know, but so early."

"Ah," he answered laughingly, "an yonder friend's husband James would say, a stitch in time saves nine. By heavens and three fellows with money. I broke away from the convivial group so that in alighting from the car that approaches your palatial mansion I would not endanger the unblemished mantle of dust which lies in tranquil beauty on the soul of your pavement."

Mrs. Collins arose and looked at Jane.

"He talks like a Christmas edition of the Fireside Companion," she observed telly. "I think I'll be going. When Mr. Brand calls with his auto you can send for me."

CHAPTER XV.

Surprised.

The inadvertent use of Brand's name did not give Dick the surprise he imagined. As Mrs. Collins went out he looked at Jane in a startled sort of way and she advanced to him.

"You heard?" she said.

"Of course I heard."

"Well, what about it?" she asked, doubtfully.

"You make my question out of my mouth, Jane. That is what I was wondering. What about it?"

Her eyes flashed. Again she was very beautiful and again there appeared that queenly bearing that bespoke a dominant spirit and made her words superfluous.

"Dick," she said, "you and I have been good friends. I hope that you shall remain so. But this is my affair. I shall think I'll be going. When Mr. Brand calls with his auto you can send for me."

"I met him once."

"But I mean since then. He's been here several times."

"I know that, too," the reporter answered calmly. "But I'm sorry he's coming today."

"Sorry? Why should you be sorry? You have some perverted idea of why he comes—and what he's doing. Why don't you express it?"

"I haven't qualified as a moral censor as yet, Jane. You say I have some idea of why Brand is coming. Yes, I have an idea, but I have no knowledge. I tell you I have known that he has been coming and without Bob's knowledge." He stepped forward and took her hand. "Jane I've been—well, not extremely happy, but I haven't inflicted my grief on you or anybody else."

"Certainly not," she answered aggressively. "There's no reason why you should. Mr. Brand has as much right to be here as you or anyone else."

He dropped her hand and smiled a little sadly as he answered:

"I'm afraid that is a little unworthy of you. I am here at the standing invitation of the Reynolds; not lately renewed on your part, to be sure, but quite recently on Bob's. That's why I'm sorry; sorry for him and you and perhaps for your prospective guest. Though I don't believe," he added quickly, "I shall shed any great quantity of tears on his account. Bob's coming home early. That's why I'm here. He asked me to meet him here at three o'clock."

He took out his watch.

"It's a quarter past three now," he said. "What time are we likely to have the pleasure of Mr. Brand's company?"
